BERENBAUM – Appl. No. 09/768,592

consistency of periodicity by continually calculating the data period between the time stamps of data packets with a constant source address. However, any method of detecting a relatively constant periodicity from a particular source is within the principles of the present invention.